Background

The Clean Energy Transitions in Emerging Economies (CETEE) programme works with selected emerging economies to implement actions to fulfil global clean energy and climate targets in line with the Paris Agreement, the energy pledges made at UNFCCC COP28, national Net-Zero targets, while contributing towards the EU external policy objectives and the IEA global engagement strategy.

The IEA is currently finalising the second phase of the programme (CETEE-2), which builds on the results and successes of the first phase of CETEE (2020-2022). CETEE-2 has run from January 2023 to September 2025, and has provided support and analysis across four interrelated components:

- Improved data and statistics,
- Decarbonisation of the power sector with renewables,
- Investment and financing in climate-resilient energy assets and infrastructure, and
- Tracking clean energy innovation and partnerships.

Workshop objectives

As CETEE-2 comes to a close, this workshop will take place in a hybrid form in Brussels and online and be co-hosted by the European Commission and the International Energy Agency. It aims to showcase some of the main outputs of the programme across these components, complemented by the perspectives from representatives of selected emerging economies.

International Energy Agency

The organisation of this event was supported by the 2nd phase of the Clean Energy Transitions in Emerging Economies programme, which received funding from the European Union's Horizon Europe research and innovation programme under contributing agreement CA 01- 23.
