

Kurt Shickman

Kurt is the Executive Director of the Global Cool Cities Alliance (GCCA). The Global Cool Cities Alliance works with cities, regions, national governments, and other stakeholders to accelerate the worldwide deployment of cool roofs and pavements. Prior to joining GCCA, Kurt was the Director of Research for the Energy Future Coalition and the United Nations Foundation's Energy and Climate team. Kurt received his Masters degree with a focus on Energy Policy and Economics from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS). He has also worked in management consulting and corporate finance for several multinational firms including Royal Ahold, MCI Worldcom, and Federal Realty Investment Trust.